REPORT

SINCE
1964

Following a reduction in business levels due to commercial disputes between China and USA in 2019, followed by the global pandemic COVID19 crisis in 2020, the statistics for 2019 -2020 YoY demonstrates that CREDIT REPORT LATIN AMERICAN SAC continued to support assessing risks with our business credit reporting service, approximately 10% of balanced trade credit decisions around the world.

While the economic environment has suffered following the trade war of the last year, 2020 has presented significant challenges early in the year. Brexit, Trade War, Pandemic crisis with substantial areas of uncertainty appear in contrast to the aggressive terms and conditions re-appearing in credit and trade insurance markets. Last year we were contemplating how to adapt to a new equilibrium in the market; now, the concern is the speed with which some old market behaviors are no longer valid and disappearing in front of a new reality created by the COVID-19 crisis.

Equally, CREDIT REPORT LATIN AMERICAN SAC is concerned with the implications of change and disruption for classic business models, which is causing bad debts and bankruptcies nowadays all over the world. This disruption caused by the pandemic would have severe consequences for the global economic recovery.

The more informed

Uncertain times and Risk Management - The Value of Business Intelligence and Information

Most risk management professionals will appreciate that there are differences, and greater inherent risks, in dealing with international customers in unfamiliar environments.

For this main reasons we help validate business information worldwide.

When companies expand outside of their domestic environment, the lure of the perceived opportunity can sometimes overwhelm good business sense. When this is the case, due diligence is often sidelined in favour of aggressive efforts to penetrate a new and untapped foreign market.
